

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS
PhD in Economics and Management
University of Padua (Italy)

The Department of Economics and Management at the University of Padua offers nine fully funded Ph.D. positions starting from October 2020.

The Department of Economics and Management (DEM) of the University of Padova is looking for outstanding candidates for its PhD program in Economics and Management. We offer nine four-year scholarships, five for the curriculum in Economics and four for the curriculum in Management.

Our Research Community

DEM is a center of excellence in applied economics, accounting, economic theory and management and it is part of one of the world oldest higher education institutions, the University of Padova, located in Italy's North-East.

The DEM is one of the leading research institutions in Italy for economics and business, nominated "Departments of Excellence for research" in 2018 by the Italian Ministry of University and Research. The last national research assessment that covered the period 2011-2014 ranked the University of Padova first in the scientific area including economics, business science and statistics.

The DEM offers a stimulating learning and research environment to students from around the world. Its international Ph.D. program has a long tradition of quality and success and complements the department's offer of bachelor and masters degrees.

Our Doctoral Programme

The PhD program is composed of two distinct curricula, Economics and Management. Both curricula consist of rigorous coursework during the first year, and supervised research on the PhD thesis from the second to the fourth year. The coursework of the first year is specific to each curriculum and divided in three terms. Please visit <http://www.economia.unipd.it/en/phd/phd-in-economics-and-management> for more details.

Application Requirements

The official application period for the academic year 2020/2021 is May 4th – June, 16th 2020.
